Honorable Sanford Bishop
Ranking Member
Subcommittee on Agriculture, Rural Development, and Food and Drug Administration
Committee on Appropriations
U.S. House of Representatives
Washington, DC 20515

Dear Chairman Cole, Ranking Member DeLauro, Chairman Harris, and Ranking Member Bishop:

Thank you for your ongoing support of the food production, manufacturing, distribution, wholesale, and retail industries that comprise the entire U.S. food supply. As you know, numerous factors have led to increased strains on the U.S. food supply chain. We are seeking your support to maintain a narrow provision, Section 768, in the FY '25 Agriculture Appropriations bill to ensure that the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) works with all stakeholders in the food supply chain to implement the Food Traceability Rule, while maintaining efforts that improve food safety.

In one of the final rulemaking actions to implement a relatively narrow provision of the Food Safety Modernization Act (FSMA), the FDA issued a complex final rule – “Requirements for Additional Traceability Records for Certain Foods” (Food Traceability Rule) – in November 2022. The original intent of the legislative provision was to target truly “high risk” food products that have experienced challenging food safety concerns and product recalls.

FDA released the final rule in November of 2022 and set the compliance date as January 20, 2026. This gives industry only three years for implementation from the final rule to the compliance date, which is unrealistic given the complexity of the rule. A similarly complicated rule required under the Drug Supply Chain Security Act (DSCSA), enacted in 2013, provided over 10-years for industry to come into compliance. Despite best efforts to meet that deadline, FDA recently granted another one-year extension. This is significant because the pharmaceutical supply chain involves fewer entities that are subject to the regulation and involves far fewer products to track than the requirements of FDA’s Food Traceability List. We believe this further supports the urgent need for additional flexibility and time for the food supply chain to fully implement the new Food Traceability Rule, given the magnitude and diversity of the food industry and the expansive number of products subject to the Rule.

The food industry is fully committed to food safety and working with FDA. To this end, companies throughout the food supply chain are dedicating considerable time, effort, and resources to identify compliance solutions for the Food Traceability Rule, but after two years of implementation, the industry still needs more time to create an effective and workable system.

Due to the issues surrounding the Food Traceability Rule, we respectfully request the Committee maintain Section 768 in the final FY '25 Agriculture Appropriations bill. This provision will ensure FDA works collaboratively with industry stakeholders across the food supply chain to conduct pilot projects to test the effectiveness and efficiency of product tracking under the Rule before enforcing the unrealistic compliance date of January 2026. We believe the compliance date should be extended by two years following the completion of the pilot projects with industry stakeholders. This critical time will allow all entities, both large and small, to work together to develop interoperable systems to communicate and maintain the records FDA is seeking.

Thank you for your consideration and support on this important issue.

Sincerely,
